

Local Reports

Guidance

This new section in our website will be based on reports in a format somewhere between news and blog. Although they are not formal news we aim the Local Reports to be informative, and to also to provide forward thinking as to how we can address some of the challenges that the Local Reporters encounter in different locations and various settings.

Local Reports can be anyone with some field experience and/or with an interest and in international development. Additionally we are interested in understanding how entrepreneurship, innovation, community engagement, and tools such as those of social entrepreneurship can contribute to long lasting development.

Our main focus is on global health, yet we have a growing interest in other areas given that these influence the former and are often at the root of many challenges in healthcare provision.

Local Reports will have an innovative structure that we are naming Symptoms-Causes-Solutions (SCS structure): identifying the symptoms (what is visible), the underlying causes (as only be addressing these we can devise long-lasting solutions); and the possible solutions (innovative, entrepreneurial, out-of-the box thinking, with the engagement of communities and the different sectors where relevant).
